DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. Line 3 reads, "fixing the case to a human body". The body may not be claimed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

4. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chesney'383 (US Patent 6132383) in view of Villa-Real'767 (US Patent 4320767).

Regarding claim 1, Chesney'383 discloses a pulse wave monitor comprising a housing (element 200) having an opening formed by base feet (elements 260) and cross members (elements 262) (figures 2D and 2E); and a pressure sensing section (element 299, housed in element 230)) mounted within the housing's opening (figure 2E). The pressure sensing section may be freely moved perpendicular to the subject's surface as a result of a height-adjustment mechanism (column 8, lines 24-29). Chesney'383 does not disclose a protective cover that protects the pressure sensing section when it is located at the waiting position.

Villa-Real'767 teaches a pulse wave sensor comprising a pressure sensor (element 1) and a protective cover (element 6) that is attached to the sensor's housing (element 5) when the sensor is not in use (column 9, lines 34-35), so that the sensor is protected from physical harm.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have made the device of Chesney'383 and added a cover to protect the sensor when it is not in use (i.e., in the waiting position), as taught by Villa-Real'767, so that the sensor is protected from physical harm.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 1 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Allowable Subject Matter

Art Unit: 3735

6. Claims 8 and 9 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The prior art of record fails to anticipate or make obvious the structure of claims 8 and 9, including, inter-alia, providing a protective cover for a pressure sensing system that faces the sensing surface when a device's case body has been slid to a waiting position where the sensing surface does not face an insertion hole for measurement.

Conclusion

7. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
